

Adding Terms to the GPL

By: Paul H. Arne^{1,2}

Many of us are called to review our clients' use of open source software. Frequently, we are given a report with the name of the software and the name of the license to that software, with nothing else. One can then look up the open source license, often from a neutral source such as The Open Source Initiative's website,³ where the text of many open source software licenses can be found.

This process of reviewing open source licenses is only accurate if the license agreement that is actually being used to license the open source software matches the text of the open source licenses on these third party sites. Unfortunately, the terms of the actual license to the software in question can be different from the "form" open source license.

This article explores some of the software packages that utilize the GNU General Public License ("GPL") but have added additional terms. A selection of those software packages and their additional license terms is set forth in Attachment A to this article. This article also explores the rationale for adding additional license terms to the GPL.

Added Terms and the GPL

Historically, the Free Software Foundation ("FSF"), the creators and strongest proponents of the GPL, has generally espoused a desire not to have its licenses modified. At the very beginning of these licenses, there is a copyright notice followed immediately by some variation of the following: "Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license document, but changing it is not allowed."⁴ The FSF also has been very hesitant to allow translations of its licenses.⁵

It became clear, however, that certain modifications to the GPL made sense in certain situations. One of the early modifications was to the license for the GNU Bison parser. Because the use of Bison had the effect of incorporating some of the elements of Bison into the resulting outputs (in the case of Bison, the outputs are themselves software), the outputs became derivative works of Bison itself. Unless relief from the "copyleft" terms of the GPL was available, the only software with which one would be willing to use Bison would be software that is licensed under the GPL. Such a limit would reduce the usefulness of Bison itself and also would help prevent Bison from being a standard or "parser of choice."

Accordingly, the FSF allowed for the following special exception:

As a special exception, you may create a larger work that contains part or all of the Bison parser skeleton and distribute that work under terms of your choice, so long as that work isn't itself a parser generator using the skeleton or a modified version thereof as a parser skeleton. Alternatively, if you modify or redistribute the parser skeleton itself, you may (at your option)

remove this special exception, which will cause the skeleton and the resulting Bison output files to be licensed under the GNU General Public License without this special exception.⁶

By the time version 3 of the GPL (GPLv3) was promulgated, the FSF incorporated terms into version 3 of its licenses that expressly contemplated changes to the license terms. Not all changes are acceptable, however. GPLv3 contemplates three different types of modifications to the terms of the GPL: “additional permissions,” “supplemental terms,” and “further restrictions.”

Additional permissions are covered in Section 7 of GPLv3 and are defined as “terms that supplement the terms of this License by making exceptions from one or more of its conditions.” The GPLv3 allows the author of the work to add additional permissions to that part of the work contributed by that author. GPLv3 also allows a recipient of software that is licensed under GPLv3 with additional permissions to remove those additional permissions for subsequent distribution of the work.

GPLv3 also allows the author to add — only for the materials that such author actually contributes to a work — certain supplemental terms, as follows:

- a) Disclaiming warranty or limiting liability differently from the [corresponding terms of GPLv3]; or
- b) Requiring preservation of specified reasonable legal notices or author attributions in that material or in the Appropriate Legal Notices displayed by works containing it; or
- c) Prohibiting misrepresentation of the origin of that material, or requiring that modified versions of such material be marked in reasonable ways as different from the original version; or
- d) Limiting the use for publicity purposes of names of licensors or authors of the material; or
- e) Declining to grant rights under trademark law for use of some trade names, trademarks, or service marks; or
- f) Requiring indemnification of licensors and authors of that material by anyone who conveys the material (or modified versions of it) with contractual assumptions of liability to the recipient, for any liability that these contractual assumptions directly impose on those licensors and authors.⁷

All added terms other than additional permissions or the above-enumerated supplemental terms are treated as “further restrictions.” GPLv3 grants licensees the rights to ignore and remove “further restrictions.”⁸ Further, in Sections 8 and 10 of GPLv3, preclude the use of further restrictions as a condition of subsequent licensing and distribution. Section 8 also provides that an attempt to distribute any software subject to GPLv3 except as allowed under GPLv3 results in an automatic termination of all rights under the license.

Why Add Terms?

There are a number of different situations where adding additional permissions and supplemental terms to the GPL may make sense for software licensed under the GPL (“GPL Software”). Below are a few examples.

- When the use of the GPL Software results in expressive elements of the GPL Software itself begin present in the output. Examples include software used in the development of software itself, including compilers, parsers, etc.
- When the author of the GPL Software wants to enable its use with libraries not licensed under the GPL. Because the linking of libraries with GPL Software runs the risk of having the library being treated as a derivative work of the GPL Software, or the combination being treated as a single work for copyright purposes, there is a risk that using a non-GPL-licensed library with GPL Software will result in the non-GPL-licensed software to be required to be licensed under the GPL. This situation is sufficiently common that the Frequently Asked Questions about the GNU Licenses (“GNU FAQ”) contains an example of license language that can be used for this purpose.⁹
- When attribution is desired. It is possible to require some form of attribution by adding supplemental terms.
- When GPL disclaimers are considered insufficient. Some software providers feel the need to add, or substitute, their own disclaimers of warranty, limitations of consequential damages, or limitations of liability.

Conclusion

There are at least 3 conclusions that can be drawn from this article.

First, when someone tells you that software is licensed under the GPL, that may or may not be the complete answer. There are times when the presence or not of supplemental terms can drastically change the potential risks associated with factual scenarios involving open source software.

Second, in exploring with a client what can and cannot be done, or what has and has not happened, in the use of software licensed under the GPL in combination with software that is intended to be kept proprietary, the presence of a supplemental term can make a significant difference in ones analysis.

Third, when advising clients strategically related to how to license their software products, the ability to add supplemental terms to the GPL for portions of the software, e.g., libraries, that they create can be an important alternative.

1. you obey the GPL in all respects for the Program and the modified version, except for Excepted Works which are identifiable sections of the modified version, which are not derived from the Program, and which can reasonably be considered independent and separate works in themselves,
2. all Excepted Works which are identifiable sections of the modified version, which are not derived from the Program, and which can reasonably be considered independent and separate works in themselves,

A. Description

Autoconf is an extensible package of m4 macros that produce shell scripts to automatically configure software source code packages.

B. Source

C. Added Text

Under Section 7 of GPL version 3, you are granted additional permissions described in the Autoconf Configure Script Exception, version 3.0, as published by the Free Software Foundation.

You should have received a copy of the GNU General Public License and a copy of the Autoconf Configure Script Exception along with this program; see the files COPYINGv3 and COPYING.EXCEPTION respectively. If not, see .

The GNU General Public License version 3 may be found on Debian systems in `/usr/share/common-licenses/GPL-3`.

The Autoconf Configure Script Exception version 3 is below:

AUTOCONF CONFIGURE SCRIPT EXCEPTION

Version 3.0, 18 August 2009

Copyright (C) 2009 Free Software Foundation, Inc.

Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license document, but changing it is not allowed.

This Exception is an additional permission under section 7 of the GNU General Public License, version 3 ("GPLv3"). It applies to a given file that bears a notice placed by the copyright holder of the file stating that the file is governed by GPLv3 along with this Exception.

The purpose of this Exception is to allow distribution of Autoconf's typical output under terms of the recipient's choice (including proprietary).

0. Definitions

"Covered Code" is the source or object code of a version of Autoconf that is a covered work under this License.

"Normally Copied Code" for a version of Autoconf means all parts of its Covered Code which that version can copy from its code (i.e., not from its input file) into its minimally verbose, non-debugging and non-tracing output.

"Ineligible Code" is Covered Code that is not Normally Copied Code.

1. Grant of Additional Permission.

You have permission to propagate output of Autoconf, even if such propagation would otherwise violate the terms of GPLv3. However, if by modifying Autoconf you cause any Ineligible Code of the version you received to become Normally Copied Code of your modified version, then you void this Exception for the resulting covered work. If you convey that resulting covered work, you must remove this Exception in accordance with the second paragraph of Section 7 of GPLv3.

2. No Weakening of Autoconf Copyleft.

The availability of this Exception does not imply any general presumption that third-party software is unaffected by the copyleft requirements of the license of Autoconf.

3. Software Title: GNU Bison

C. Added Text

As a special exception, you may create a larger work that contains part or all of the Bison parser skeleton and distribute that work under terms of your choice, so long as that work isn't itself a parser generator using the skeleton or a modified version thereof as a parser skeleton. Alternatively, if you modify or redistribute the parser skeleton itself, you may (at your option) remove this special exception, which will cause the skeleton and the resulting Bison output files to be licensed under the GNU General Public License without this special exception.

This special exception was added by the Free Software Foundation in version 2.2 of Bison.

C. Added Text

According to GNU GPL v3, section 7 b)

In versions prior to cpg1.5.x, the Coppermine group (aka Coppermine Dev Team) required the preservation of the "Powered by Coppermine" footer in a legible, unobscured manner in the output of all pages generated by Coppermine-driven galleries.

This policy has changed with the release of cpg1.5.x. Starting with cpg1.5.x, it is no longer part of the license to keep this footer intact in legal terms. The reason for this change of policy lies in the nature of the internet and the fact that the Coppermine group doesn't have the funds nor inclination to enforce the preservation of the footer before legal courts. It has originally been made a requirement by the initial author of the first version of Coppermine. However, we ask you (the end user) to respect the wish of the original creator of Coppermine and keep the footer intact. Additionally, we have a strict policy on the Coppermine support forum that galleries with the footer tag removed will not receive support, as it is our choice to whom we give support. We're convinced that you should give credit where credit is due. We ask you to think twice before removing the tag, as it is meant to spread the word about Coppermine and give others who like your Coppermine-driven gallery the opportunity to get one of their own.

The Coppermine Dev Team welcomes that version 3 of the GNU GPL clarifies the legal aspect of author attributions and demands of any third parties to respect the full license, including the additional terms covered in this section of the documentation. This means that it is allowed to edit or remove the "Powered by Coppermine" tag from the output generated by Coppermine-driven galleries, however you are not allowed to remove the author attribution from the source code of Coppermine.

It is acceptable (fair use) to edit the "Powered by Coppermine" footer in a manner that explains who holds the copyrights of content displayed on a gallery."

According to GNU GPL v3, section 7 c)

The Coppermine Dev Team requires as additional term of the license Coppermine comes with that modified versions of Coppermine conveyed to others should be marked in a reasonable way. Modified versions mustn't be conveyed to others under the same name as the original coppermine release. Package name, source code and the output generated by the modified version should make it obvious for potential users that the modified version and the original coppermine version that the modified version is based upon differ."

"Delphi" means any edition of Borland Delphi 7, Borland Delphi 2005, or any Delphi version later than Borland Delphi 2005 (including CodeGear Delphi 2009 and any later version). C. Added Text

NOTE: The text below is actually just the LGPL. I included it so you could see how it is incorporated into those pieces of software that are licensed under the GPLv3 and include this as well.

This version of the GNU Lesser General Public License incorporates the terms and conditions of version 3 of the GNU General Public License, supplemented by the additional permissions listed below.

0. Additional Definitions.

As used herein, "this License" refers to version 3 of the GNU Lesser General Public License, and the "GNU GPL" refers to version 3 of the GNU General Public License.

"The Library" refers to a covered work governed by this License, other than an Application or a Combined Work as defined below.

An "Application" is any work that makes use of an interface provided by the Library, but which is not otherwise based on the Library. Defining a subclass of a class defined by the Library is deemed a mode of using an interface provided by the Library.

A "Combined Work" is a work produced by combining or linking an Application with the Library. The particular version of the Library with which the Combined Work was made is also called the "Linked Version".

The "Minimal Corresponding Source" for a Combined Work means the Corresponding Source for the Combined Work, excluding any source code for portions of the Combined Work that, considered in isolation, are based on the Application, and not on the Linked Version.

The "Corresponding Application Code" for a Combined Work means the object code and/or source code for the Application, including any data and utility programs needed for reproducing the Combined Work from the Application, but excluding the System Libraries of the Combined Work.

1. Exception to Section 3 of the GNU GPL.

You may convey a covered work under sections 3 and 4 of this License without being bound by section 3 of the GNU GPL.

2. Conveying Modified Versions.

If you modify a copy of the Library, and, in your modifications, a facility refers to a function or data to be supplied by an Application that uses the facility (other than as an argument passed when the facility is invoked), then you may convey a copy of the modified version:

- a) under this License, provided that you make a good faith effort to ensure that, in the event an Application does not supply the function or data, the facility still operates, and performs whatever part of its purpose remains meaningful, or
- b) under the GNU GPL, with none of the additional permissions of this License applicable to that copy.

3. Object Code Incorporating Material from Library Header Files.

The object code form of an Application may incorporate material from a header file that is part of the Library. You may convey such object code under terms of your choice, provided that, if the incorporated material is not limited to numerical parameters, data structure layouts and accessors, or small macros, inline functions and templates (ten or fewer lines in length), you do both of the following:

- a) Give prominent notice with each copy of the object code that the Library is used in it and that the Library and its use are covered by this License.
- b) Accompany the object code with a copy of the GNU GPL and this license document.

4. Combined Works.

You may convey a Combined Work under terms of your choice that, taken together, effectively do not restrict modification of the portions of the Library contained in the Combined Work and reverse engineering for debugging such modifications, if you also do each of the following:

- a) Give prominent notice with each copy of the Combined Work that the Library is used in it and that the Library and its use are covered by this License.
- b) Accompany the Combined Work with a copy of the GNU GPL and this license document.
- c) For a Combined Work that displays copyright notices during execution, include the copyright notice for the Library among these notices, as well as a reference directing the user to the copies of the GNU GPL and this license document.
- d) Do one of the following:

0) Convey the Minimal Corresponding Source under the terms of this License, and the Corresponding Application Code in a form suitable for, and under terms that permit, the user to recombine or relink the Application with a modified version of the Linked Version to produce a modified Combined Work, in the manner specified by section 6 of the GNU GPL for conveying Corresponding Source.

1) Use a suitable shared library mechanism for linking with the Library. A suitable mechanism is one that (a) uses at run time a copy of the Library already present on the user's computer system, and (b) will operate properly with a modified version of the Library that is interface-compatible with the Linked Version.

e) Provide Installation Information, but only if you would otherwise be required to provide such information under section 6 of the GNU GPL, and only to the extent that such information is necessary to install and execute a modified version of the Combined Work produced by recombining or relinking the Application with a modified version of the Linked Version. (If you use option 4d0, the Installation Information must accompany the Minimal Corresponding Source and Corresponding Application Code. If you use option 4d1, you must provide the Installation Information in the manner specified by section 6 of the GNU GPL for conveying Corresponding Source.)

5. Combined Libraries.

You may place library facilities that are a work based on the Library side by side in a single library together with other library facilities that are not Applications and are not covered by this License, and convey such a combined library under terms of your choice, if you do both of the following:

a) Accompany the combined library with a copy of the same work based on the Library, uncombined with any other library facilities, conveyed under the terms of this License.

b) Give prominent notice with the combined library that part of it is a work based on the Library, and explaining where to find the accompanying uncombined form of the same work.

6. Revised Versions of the GNU Lesser General Public License.

The Free Software Foundation may publish revised and/or new versions of the GNU Lesser General Public License from time to time. Such new versions will be similar in spirit to the present version, but may differ in detail to address new problems or concerns.

Each version is given a distinguishing version number. If the Library as you received it specifies that a certain numbered version of the GNU Lesser General Public License "or any later version" applies to it, you have the option of following the terms and conditions either of that published version or of any later version published by the Free Software Foundation. If the Library as you received it does not specify a version number of the GNU Lesser General Public License, you may choose any version of the GNU Lesser General Public License ever published by the Free Software Foundation.

If the Library as you received it specifies that a proxy can decide whether future versions of the GNU Lesser General Public License shall apply, that proxy's public statement of acceptance of any version is permanent authorization for you to choose that version for the Library.

Terms and Conditions

Definitions

- Terms used, but not defined, herein shall have the meaning provided in the GPL.
- “Library” means Ext JS, Sencha Touch or Sencha GXT, for which this exception is applicable.
- “Derivative Work” means derivative works as defined by US copyright law.

Additional Grants

As a special exception to the terms and conditions of version 3.0 of the GPL:

You are free to distribute a Derivative Work that is formed entirely from the Library and one or more works (each, a “FLOSS Work”) licensed under one or more of the licenses listed below in section 5, as long as:

- You obey the GPL in all respects for the Library and the Derivative Work, except for identifiable sections of the Derivative Work which are not derived from the Library, and which can reasonably be considered independent and separate works in themselves
- All identifiable sections of the Derivative Work which are not derived from the Library, and which can reasonably be considered independent and separate works in themselves, are distributed subject to one of the FLOSS licenses listed below, and
- The object code or executable form of those sections are accompanied by the complete corresponding machine-readable source code for those sections on the same medium and under the same FLOSS license as the corresponding object code or executable forms of those sections, and
- Any works which are aggregated with the Library or with a Derivative Work on a volume of a storage or distribution medium in accordance with the GPL, can reasonably be considered independent and separate works in themselves which are not derivatives of either the Library, a Derivative Work or a FLOSS Work.

■ The Derivative Work can reasonably be considered independent and separate work that is intended for use by end-users and not as a library for software development purposes.

Applicability

This exception applies to Ext JS version 2.2 or later, Sencha Touch 1.0 or later and Sencha GXT version 1.0 or later released under the GPL that contain a conspicuous notice with the Derivative Work and conspicuously posted online near any download location, saying that Derivative Works built using the Library may be distributed under the terms of this Exception and that the included Library is subject to the terms of the GPL v3.

This Exception can in no way be considered to grant rights to use or distribute the Library under any license other than the GPL v3.

Termination

If you fail to comply with any of the terms in this Exception then all rights granted to you herein are void and your rights immediately revert back to those granted in the GPL v3."

Additional Terms according section 7 of GNU/GPL V3:

These additional terms refer to SobiPro and its applications (hereinafter referred to as Software) and any updates to Software.

"Sobi" and "SobiPro" are trademarks of Sigsiu.NET GmbH. The licensing of the Software under the GPL does not imply a trademark license. Therefore any rights, title and interest in our trademarks remain entirely with Sigsiu.NET GmbH.

Except as expressly provided herein, no trademark rights are granted to any trademarks of Sigsiu.NET GmbH. Licensees are granted a limited, non-exclusive right to use the marks "Sobi", "SobiPro" and the SobiPro and Sigsiu.NET logos in connection with unmodified copies of the Software.

If the licensee distributes modified copies of the Software, he has to:

Replace/remove all terms, images and files containing the marks "Sobi", "SobiPro" and the SobiPro and Sigsiu.NET logos.

Remove any code which causes connection to or any kind of load of servers managed by Sigsiu.NET GmbH

The terms "Sigsiu", "Sigsiu.NET", "Sobi" and "SobiPro" have to be removed from all visual outputs (front-end and back-end).

The copyright notices within the source code files must not be removed and have to be left fully intact.

This agreement does not limit user's rights under, or grant user rights that supersede, the license terms of any particular component of the Software.

In addition, licensees that modify the Software must give the modified Software a new name that is not confusingly similar to "Sobi" or "SobiPro" and may not distribute it under the names "Sobi" and "SobiPro".

The names "Sobi", "SobiPro" and "Sigsiu" must not be used to endorse or promote products derived from this Software without prior written permission of Sigsiu.NET GmbH.

If any provision of this agreement is held to be unenforceable, it does not excuse you from the conditions of this License. If the licensee cannot distribute so as to satisfy simultaneously his obligations under this License and any other pertinent obligations, then as a consequence he may not distribute the Software at all.

Additional Terms and Conditions

Note that the GPL places important restrictions on "derived works", yet it does not provide a detailed definition of that term. To avoid misunderstandings, the AUTHOR considers an application to constitute a "derivative work" for the purpose of this license if it does any of the following:

Integrates source code from SQL Fingerprint™ NG.

Reads or includes SQL Fingerprint™ NG copyrighted data files, such: version database and configuration files, any code extraction (partial or total), any algorithm (partial or total), etc...

Integrates, includes or aggregates SQL Fingerprint™ NG (partial or total) into a proprietary executable installer, such as those produced by InstallShield.

Links to a library or executes a program that does any of the above.

The term "SQL Fingerprint™ NG" should be taken to also include any portions or derived works of SQL Fingerprint™ NG. This list is not exclusive, but is meant to clarify the AUTHOR's interpretation of "derived works" with some common examples. The AUTHOR's interpretation applies only to SQL Fingerprint™ NG -- he doesn't speak for other people's GPL works.

If you have any questions about the GPL licensing restrictions on using SQL Fingerprint™ NG in non-GPL works, the AUTHOR would be happy to help. As mentioned above, the AUTHOR also offers alternative license to integrate SQL Fingerprint™ NG into proprietary applications and appliances. These licenses generally include a perpetual license as well as providing for priority support and updates as well as helping to fund the continued development of SQL Fingerprint™ NG technology. Please email the AUTHOR for further information.

If you received these files with a written license agreement or contract stating terms other than the terms above, then that alternative license agreement takes precedence over these comments.

Source is provided to this software because the AUTHOR believes users have a right to know exactly what a program is going to do before they run it. This also allows you to audit the software for security holes, but none have been found so far.

Source code also allows you to port SQL Fingerprint™ NG to new platforms, fix bugs, and add new features and new protocol modules. You are highly encouraged to send your changes to the AUTHOR for possible incorporation into the main distribution. By sending these changes to AUTHOR, it is assumed that you are offering the SQL Fingerprint™ NG Project, and its AUTHOR, the unlimited, non-exclusive right to reuse, modify, and relicense the code. SQL Fingerprint™ NG will always be available Open Source, but this is important because the inability to relicense code has caused devastating problems for other Free Software projects (such as KDE and NASM). The AUTHOR also occasionally relicense the code to third parties as discussed above. If you wish to specify special license conditions of your contributions, just say so when you send them.
